How David Handled The Worst of Times

David A. Cox

"How long, O Lord? Will You forget me forever? How long will You hide Your face from me? How long shall I take counsel in my soul, having sorrow in my heart daily? How long will my enemy be exalted over me? — (Psalm 13:1-2).

It is often said, "Time flies when you are having fun." How that is reversed when times are difficult. When the trials of life come, life seems to move in slow motion, and we wonder if it will ever change. As David pens Psalm 13, he repeatedly asks, "How long?" David is at a point where he wonders if he has been forgotten. Everyone can certainly relate to this at times. However, when David finds himself in deep anguish, he calls out to the Lord. Why does David do this if God has forgotten him? David has faith that even in the worst circumstances, he knows God is there and loves him. Let us notice this in the psalm.

David Pours Out His Heart In Prayer

The first thing David does is call upon the Lord in prayer. In this psalm, David is making a petition to the Lord about the things he is enduring. How much we need to see the value of the relationship between David and the Lord. David calls out to the Lord to "Consider and hear me" (Psalm 13:3). It is reassuring that even amidst the heartbreaks and disappointments in this life, we have a God who wants to hear from us (1 Peter 5:7). David's relationship with God gave him an assurance that God would listen to, or hear him. David asked God to "enlighten my eyes." David's request was to see things the way God sees them. We often may not understand why we suffer the things we do, but may we ask the Lord to see things the way He sees them. David desires this understanding so that he will not fall prey to the enemies' appeal to draw him away from the Lord.

Hope For Tomorrow

In all the difficulties David is facing, he still has hope. David proclaims, "But I have trusted in Your mercy" (Psalm 13:5). David has put his trust in the unfailing mercy of God. God is forever loving His people.

David A. Cox, Editor

Psalm 146:8 says, "The Lord loves the righteous." What a wondrous thought that David could remind himself about God's great love and mercy that never fails. In the best of times, and especially in the worst of times. Because of this great mercy and love, David would say, "My heart shall rejoice in Your salvation. I will sing to the Lord, because He has dealt bountifully with me" (Psalm 13:5b-6). David expresses the truth that even in times of great trial, there is hope and rejoicing. In Romans 8:35-39, Paul makes the same point. In all the trials, hardships, and persecutions the first-century Christians suffered, Paul says, "Yet in all these things we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us" (Romans 8:37). Why is this the case? Because nothing will separate us from the love of God.

As we see in David, let us learn the value of an unyielding faith. May we learn the value of our faith in the best of times but even more in the worst of times. May we always remember to look to the Lord from where we get our strength in every circumstance in life.

The Desperate Need for Love

Mark McCrary

The world is in desperate need of love. A lack of love and compassion is at the very heart of most of the problems plaguing us today—war, racism, mass shootings... the list goes on and on. In a time where there seems to be so much division, hatred, and fear, it is more important than ever to embrace love as the answer to our problems. The Bible tells us that love is not only important, but it is also essential to our well-being as individuals, as a church, and as a society.

In 1 John 4:8, the Bible tells us that "God is love." Love is not just something God does; it is who He is. It is the very essence of His nature. The Bible also tells us we are made in His image (Genesis 1:26). That entails many things, but certainly that we need to reflect Him to the world around us. Therefore, if He is love, we must be love as well; we need to love as He loves. Jesus reminds us that the greatest commandment is to love God with all our heart, soul, and mind, and to love our neighbors as ourselves (Matthew 22:36-40). In John 13:34-35, He tells us, "A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another: just as I have loved you, you also are to love one another. By this all people will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another."

Love has the power to overcome hate, to heal wounds, and to bring people together. When we love others, we are showing them the same grace and mercy that God has shown us. We are breaking down the barriers that divide us and building bridges of understanding and compassion. Love allows us to see people for who they are, regardless of their race, ethnicity, gender, or background.

In 1 Corinthians 13, often referred to as the "love chapter," the Bible describes what love looks like in action. "Love is patient and kind; love does not envy or boast; it is not arrogant or rude. It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice at wrongdoing but rejoices with the truth. Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things. Love never ends." (1 Corinthians 13:4-8).

This kind of love is what we need more of in our world today. And beloved, it is our duty as Christians to model it. Our families, friends, and coworkers need to see this love alive in us.

Am I showing this kind of love? To people who make me angry? To sinners? Let's ask God to help us accept the words of the apostle John while examining our hearts: "Little children, let us not love in word or talk but in deed and in truth" (1 John 3:18).

The world needs love right now because love has the power to transform lives and bring about positive change. As followers of Jesus Christ, we are called to love others as He loves us. We need to be agents of love, showing kindness, compassion, and understanding to those around us. If we all choose to love one another, we can make a difference in our world and bring hope to those who need it most.

Entrusted To Men

Scott Beyer

“But Jesus, on His part, was not entrusting Himself to them, for He knew all men, and because He did not need anyone to testify concerning man, for He Himself knew what was in man.” (John 2:24-25)

There is a distinct difference between forgiveness and trust. Jesus loves all men, but that doesn't mean that He trusts all men. There will be people in your life who you love... but can't trust. You can even forgive them, but that doesn't mean you won't have to put up healthy boundaries. That is one lesson from this passage in John.

Here is the other one – Jesus already knows your junk. He knows your tendencies toward selfishness and rationalization. He knows that you will let Him down and that the kind of person you want to be will sometimes fail to show up. He knows your sin, and He still came to die for you. Remember that.
